

Take Five

December 7, 2015

This Week in Academic Affairs

If you have visited our home page recently, you probably noticed the chat box that pops up there. This feature, which has proved very popular, is part of our efforts to attract students to IU Kokomo. These efforts—which also include welcoming middle school and high school students to our campus, visiting schools in the region, and more—help us remain a thriving university. I deeply appreciate your assistance with these efforts. See the “Kudos” box below for other valuable contributions.

Faculty, are your students completing projects as they wrap up this semester? Please encourage them to submit their material to IUK's Field: A Journal of Arts & Science. Our editorial board reviews both academic and creative work of all disciplines, styles, and lengths. We hope to see your students' work published this spring. Students have until December 21 to submit their work to Dr. Rachel A. Blumenthal (rablumen@iuk.edu).

IU Kokomo students participate in Operation Jackson Street, which provided food to those in need.

This Week at IU Kokomo

12/07: Open Session with AVCAA for Student Success Candidate (2 p.m., Bogle Room)

12/08: Open Session with AVCAA for Student Success Candidate (2 p.m., Bogle Room)

* If you have events you would like to promote in this space, please email shawml@iuk.edu.

Kudos for Kokomojo

- We had a splendid faculty turnout for VIP Day on Saturday. Thank you for showing the prospective students and their parents what a special place IU Kokomo is.
- I want to recognize all the faculty who spent approximately four hours on Saturday afternoon interviewing scholarship candidates. Shirley Aamidor, Awny Alnusair, Rachel Blumenthal, Paul Cook, Christina Downey, Joann Kaiser, Joe Keener, Mark Meng, Gloria Preece, Jason VanAlstine, and Bridget Whitmore, we owe you all a giant thank-you!