The Annual Aesthetics Anarchy Conference was held at IU May 13–15. Featured speakers included three from our own department: Peg Brand, Karen Hanson, and co-organizer Jonathan Weinberg. Recent graduate Joshua Shaw, PhD’04, now at Penn State Erie, came back to participate. Other speakers came from as far away as the University of Leeds and British Columbia.

The conference was a workshop-style symposium on aesthetics and the philosophy of art. Aesthetics fruitfully intersects with practically every other major subfield of philosophy, and the conference focused on those interstices. Moreover, while the relationship between aesthetics and the rest of philosophy is often thought of in terms of what those latter areas can bring to aesthetics, symposium participants also investigated ways in which works of art and other aesthetic phenomena may shed light on issues outside the domain of aesthetics.

Some of the many topics covered were aesthetics and cognitive architecture, aesthetics and epistemology, aesthetics and feminism, aesthetics and the law, and aesthetics and fictionalism.

Kate Abramson is coming to the Department of Philosophy from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, where she has been assistant professor of philosophy. She received a bachelor’s degree from Wellesley College and a PhD from the University of Chicago. There are three major foci of her research: the work of David Hume, contemporary ethics, and the history of modern philosophy (especially the British contribution). She is also interested in philosophical issues concerning feminism and aesthetics.

Her publications include “Hume on Cultural Conflicts of Values,” “Correcting Our Sentiments about Hume’s Moral Point of View,” and “Sympathy and the Project of Hume’s Second Enquiry.” She is currently at work on a book arguing for the philosophical background for understanding the philosophical background for Hume’s Treatise.

Abramson’s work has earned her a number of prestigious grants and fellowships, including an American Council of Learned Societies Fellowship for Junior Faculty, a Lawrence S. Rockefeller Visiting Fellowship at Princeton University’s University Center for Human Values, a Franklin Research Grant from the American Philosophical Society, and an American Fellowship from the American Association of University Women, American Fellowship. (This last she declined to accept the Princeton fellowship.) Abramson will join the department this fall as assistant professor of philosophy.

Gary Ebbs is coming to the department from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, where he has been assistant professor of philosophy. He received a bachelor of arts and a bachelor of music in piano performance from Oberlin College and a PhD from the University of Michigan. Ebbs’s work focuses on a group of interconnected topics in the philosophy of language and mind, including rule-following, meaning, the analytic-synthetic distinction, anti-individualism, realism, skepticism, and self-knowledge. He is also interested in (and has written about) the history of analytic philosophy, especially the writings of Frege, Wittgenstein, Carnap, and Quine.

Ebbs is the author of the important and well-received book Rule-Following and Realism (Harvard University Press, 1997). His many published articles include “Skepticism, Objectivity, and Brains in Vats,” “Realism and Rational Inquiry,” and “Can Realism and Rational Inquiry,” and “Can...
Faculty news

The faculty of the Department of Philosophy received many awards and honors. Sandra Shapshay was named a Poynter Center faculty fellow for an interdisciplinary seminar on the Ethics and Politics of Childhood. Shapshay teaches ethics and bioethics, and her argument in the seminar was in favor of a moral claim for children to a decent minimum of health care in the United States. She was also invited to be an affiliate faculty member of the IU Center for Bioethics in Indianapolis.

Kevin Toh won a prestigious HLA Hart Visiting Fellowship in Ethics and Legal Philosophy. He will be at the University College, Oxford University, next spring. Toh and Marcia Baron (along with almost 1,000 other people) attended the XXII World Congress of Philosophy of Law and Social Philosophy in Granada Spain. Baron also served as an external reviewer for the University of Helsinki this summer.

Tim O’Connor joined the ranks of Department of Philosophy world travelers by going to Venice, Moscow, and Beijing this year. He was also promoted to full professor.

Karen Hanson is serving as acting chair of the board of the American Philosophical Association.

Milton Fisk, who still hasn’t caught on to what retirement means, has written his first book in Spanish, the English title of which is Public Goods and Radical Justice (University of Valle Press, Cali, Colombia). He attended the World Social Forum in Porto Alegre, Brazil.

Joan Weiner has written Frege Explained (Open Court Press).

Peg Brand reports that she is now at the IUPUI campus. Her address there is Department of Philosophy, CA 344, 425 University Blvd., Indianapolis, IN 46202. Her e-mail remains the same.

Student news

Great graduate students

As usual, our graduate students have also accumulated an impressive number of awards and grants in addition to the Liebmann awards described on page 1. Alexander Klein has been awarded the Rodney G. Dennis Fellowship in the Study of Manuscripts from the Houghton Library at Harvard. This will allow him to spend up to four weeks this summer studying at the library. Klein, along with Melissa Seymour, also won travel grants from the College of Arts and Sciences.

Darren Abramson won the Outstanding Graduate Student Paper Award at the Pacific Division meeting of the APA for his paper “Computability Theory and the Philosophy of Mind.” Abramson was the third student to receive a College of Arts and Sciences travel grant, and he used his to go to Bangkok for the International Association for Computing and Philosophy, Pacific Division meeting, where he presented another paper, “Hypercomputation With and Without Supertasks.”

Dan Kirchner has been selected as the university’s representative in the graduate student exchange program with the Free University of Berlin. He will be able to study in Berlin for almost a full year.

Last but not least, the departmental awards were as follows:

- Elizabeth Palmer, Betty Neal Hamilton Award for Scholarly Excellence
- Tony Aumann, graduate academic excellence
- Chad Gonnerman, Graduate Oscar R. Ewing Essay Award, for his paper “Relaxing a Purported Tension: Frege, Parsons, and the Concept Horse”
- Chris Tillman, Outstanding Associate Instructor
- Beth Tropman, James B. Nelson Dissertation Fellowship
- Evan Schillit, a junior, was awarded the Clevenger Scholarship. Gregory Waksmsulski, a junior philosophy and political science major, won the Aulick Scholarship.

Sandra Shapshay announced the winners of the annual department awards. The Betty Neal Hamilton Special Award for Scholarly Excellence went to Marcus Messmer, a senior philosophy major who already has a BS in mathematics. According to faculty comments Shapshay received, Messmer excels in epistemology, ethics, metaphysics, and philosophy of law.

The Undergraduate Excellence Award went to Thomas Pellman, a senior with a double major in philosophy and anthropology. He graduated with a 3.94 GPA and is a past holder of the Clevenger Scholarship and a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He plans to spend next year teaching English in China.

The Undergraduate Oscar R. Ewing Essay Award went to James Bourke, who just graduated with a triple major in philosophy, political science, and an individualized major. His winning essay was titled “Rawls, Pluralism, and the Political.” Bourke is pursuing a PhD in political science at Duke University next year.

The final award presented was the Dona Roberts Biddle Award, which honors a major who has combined philosophical studies with community service. This year’s winner was Andrew Gange, who has spent his time in Bloomington volunteering for a number of environmental and other causes, including INPRIG and the “stop the new-terrain I-69” campaign. He has also raised money for the Shalom Community Center, a local organization that provides basic services for those in need.

In his application, Gange wrote, “Regardless of my own views on issues, my education in philosophy has strengthened my critical eye, and I have learned that it is extremely important to hear as many sides to an issue as possible before jumping to a conclusion.”

Congratulations!
In fall 2004, Curt Baker, MA’78, wrote, “I’m completing my third year at Florida State University College of Law and am planning to specialize in intellectual-property law.” The Tallahassee, Fla., resident can be reached at icuba@yahoo.com.

Tracy A. Beckham, BA’00, has joined Evans & Dixon as an associate in its workers’ compensation practice. She holds a doctorate of law from Saint Louis University School of Law and has served as an alumni student recruiter for IU. She lives in St. Louis.

Maurice A. Cogdell Jr., BA’92, started Cogco/Marketing, a medical-services brokerage company, and recently accepted a medical sales position with Stericycle, which offers OSHA- and HIPPA-compliance services. The Lisle, Ill., resident can be reached at usermaclvr@aol.com.

Elizabeth Donoghue-Armstrong, BA’96, of Lafayette, Colo., received a PhD in philosophy from the University of Colorado at Boulder. In June 2004 she gave birth to her second daughter, Caroline Siobhan, who joins older sister Grace.

M. Jayne Fleener, BA’78, is dean of the College of Education at Louisiana State University. She lives in Baton Rouge, La., and can be reached at fleener@lsu.edu.

Stephen R. Hicks, PhD’92, wrote Explaining Postmodernism (Scholary Custom Publishing, 2004). The Roscoe, Ill., resident is a professor of philosophy at Rockford College.

Michael Krausz, MA’67, contributed to and served as the subject of Interpretation and its Objects: Studies in the Philosophy of Michael Krausz, published in 2003. The book collects 21 original essays that discuss Krausz’s distinctive contribution to the theory of interpretation. The Lewes, Del., resident is the Milton C. Nahm Professor of Philosophy at Bryn Mawr College.

David P. Polk, BA’63, and his wife, Kitty M. Polk, BA’83, have moved to North Port on Florida’s Gulf Coast after careers in teaching, publishing, and counseling. He is the author of two books, On the Way to God and If Only I Had Known, and he assembled two music collections for churches, Chalice Hymnal and Chalice Praise. From 1990 until his retirement in 2003, he was vice president of the Christian Board of Publication and editor in chief of its book imprint, Chalice Press. Previously he was associate professor of practical theology at Brite Divinity School at Texas Christian University. He can be reached at davidandkittypolk@verizon.net.

William J. Rapaport, MA’74, PhD’76, writes, “I’m doing research on a computational theory of contextual vocabulary acquisition — figuring out a meaning for an ‘unknown’ word from context — and applying this to reading instruction in schools and to philosophical theories of conceptual-role semantics. I gave a presentation to the International Reading Association in Reno, Nev., in May 2004.” He is an associate professor of computer science and an adjunct professor of philosophy for the University at Buffalo. The East Amherst, N.Y., resident can be reached at rapaport@cse.buffalo.edu.

Bill Robinson, PhD’66, has published Understanding Phenomenal Consciousness (Cambridge University Press, 2004). A professor of philosophy at Iowa State University, he lives in Ames, Iowa.

New faculty
(continued from page 1)

We Take Our Words at Fact Value?” He is currently at work on a book about anti-individualism that presents a new way of understanding the familiar idea that some radical changes in our beliefs, including certain scientific discoveries, don’t change the extensions of our terms. Ebbs is in international demand as a speaker, with lectures to his credit in England, Poland, and China. Ebbs will join the department in the fall of 2006 as professor of philosophy.

Department celebrates Margie Clark’s 25 years of service to Indiana University

Jan. 20, 2005, was officially declared Margie Clark Day by Mark Kaplan, chair of the Department of Philosophy. It marked Clark’s 25 years of service to the university. Ten of those years have been spent in the philosophy department, where Clark has worked with undergraduates, in addition to doing crucial tasks such as payroll and purchasing. Before she came to the philosophy department, Clark worked in the library system and in the real estate office.

Pictures of the event can be found on the philosophy department’s Web site, www.indiana.edu/~phil. Go to “Local Lore,” then “Media Gallery,” then “Departmental Events.” A grand time was had by all! Congratulations, Margie Clark!

Membership matters: Join or renew today!

Your IU Alumni Association membership dues support Indiana University through programs that provide scholarships, Commencement ceremonies, student recruitment efforts, and student leadership programs. Your membership also supports programs and services for alumni.

- Call (800) 824-3044
- E-mail iuaamemb@indiana.edu
- Visit www.alumni.indiana.edu

P.H.I.L.O.S.O.P.H.Y

This newsletter is published by the Indiana University Alumni Association, in cooperation with the Department of Philosophy and the College of Arts and Sciences Alumni Association, to encourage alumni interest in and support for Indiana University. For activities and membership information, call (800) 824-3044 or send e-mail to iualumni@indiana.edu.

Department of Philosophy
Chair.................................Mark Kaplan
Editor.................................Linda Harl

College of Arts & Sciences
Dean.........................Kumble R. Subbaswamy
Executive Director of Development & Alumni Programs........David Ellies

IU Alumni Association
President/CEO..................Ken Beckley
Director of Alumni Programs..........................Nikki Bland
Editor for Constituent Periodicals......................Julie Dales
Editorial Assistant........Keith Roach

THE COLLEGE
Have tag, will travel

Send us your business card — or just your business information — and we’ll send it back to you laminated and attached to a strap, perfect for your traveling pleasure. (One tag per graduate, please.)

Your luggage tag will show that you are proud of your connection to the College of Arts & Sciences at IU and will improve our alumni database.

Mail your card or information to Luggage Tags, College of Arts & Sciences, Kirkwood Hall 208, 130 S. Woodlawn, Bloomington, IN 47405.

Your luggage tag will show that you are proud of your connection to the College of Arts & Sciences at IU and will improve our alumni database. Mail your card or information to Luggage Tags, College of Arts & Sciences, Kirkwood Hall 208, 130 S. Woodlawn, Bloomington, IN 47405.

The IU Alumni Association is charged with maintaining records for all IU alumni. Please print as much of the following information as you wish. Its purpose, in addition to providing us with your class note, is to keep IU’s alumni records accurate and up to date. To verify and update your information online, visit our online alumni directory at www.alumni.indiana.edu/directory.

Publication carrying this form: Philosophy Department Alumni Newsletter

Name ____________________________________________________________________________________________

Preferred Name ____________________________________________________________________________________

Last name while at IU _________________________ IU Degree(s)/Yr(s) ____________________________________

Soc. Sec. # or Student ID # __________________________________________________________________________

Home address ______________________________________________ Phone _________________________________

City __________________________________ State ____________________ Zip _______________________________

Business title _________________________ Company/Institution ____________________________________________

Company address ___________________________________________ Phone _________________________________

City __________________________________ State ____________________ Zip _______________________________

*E-mail ___________________________________ *Home page URL ___________________________________________

*Please indicate clearly upper and lower case.

Mailing address preference:  ☐ Home  ☐ Business

Spouse name ____________________________ Last name while at IU ________________________________

IU Degree(s)/Yr(s) ________________________________________________________________

Your news: ______________________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________________________________

☐ Please send me information about IU Alumni Association programs, services, and communications.

Please mail to the address above, or fax to (812) 855-8266.