N. Brian Winchester, Ph.D., is the director of the Center for the Study of Global Change. Professor Winchester has had extensive experience in program administration as director of Indiana University's Title VI National Resource Center for Africa, where he negotiated overseas linkages, organized conferences, coordinated international academic exchanges, supervised domestic and international outreach, consulted with faculty on new course development, etc. He has taught more than a dozen different political science and African studies courses at Iowa State and Indiana universities and the University of Lethbridge in Alberta, Canada. He currently teaches a seminar on research in less developed countries and serves as academic advisor to undergraduate and graduate students. He has conducted research in Africa, the United States, and Canada, the results of which he has presented at nearly two dozen professional conferences and subsequently published in books, reference works, and journals. He has contributed chapters to the World Encyclopedia of Political Systems and Parties, Arthur Bank's Political Handbook of the World, Ted Gurr and Robert Goldstone's Revolutions in the Late Twentieth Century, Prakash Sethi's The South African Quagmire: In Search of a Peaceful Path to Democratic Pluralism, Francois Muyumba's From Third World to One World, and Phyllis Martin and Patrick O'Meara's Africa; as well as articles for Update on Law Related Education, Social Education, Current History, The Fletcher Forum of World Affairs, and The Encyclopedia Americana.
