Indiana University Kokomo

Sycamore Elementary Partnership School

As we complete our second year as a partner, a pictorial record of moments and events:

“Can you tell me about your story?”

Mike Miller looks on as children in kindergarten work on a project. Lisa Reding, teacher in the Key Program has worked with IU Kokomo students enrolled in E370, E335, and E336 students since inception of the Partnership School in 2006.

“Let me tell you what we are doing”

Shane Matlock, working on his endorsement in Early Childhood Education and a current teacher with Head Start, guides a student in completing a task.

“Okay, so if we put this here, then what?”

Blocks, blocks, blocks! What a wonderful way to learn about math. Kevin Cress listens as a young child explains his strategy for building a tower.

“Congress to Campus”

This past semester, Christine House, Megan Bishir, Rich Arcari, and Jessica Dawson, during their E336 practicum, guided Congressmen Harold L. Volker (L), and Dan Miller (R) on a tour of Sycamore School and spoke to them about their experiences.

Secondary Education Panel Discussion

On Wednesday, February 27th, Dr. Ogawa’s S487 secondary education students joined Dr. Saam’s J500 M.S. students for a panel discussion. Panel members included Dawn Pemberton, Science teacher from Western High School, Karen Podell, Business teacher from Westfield High School, Buddy Crawford, English teacher from Eastern High School, Christy Swindell, Science teacher from Kokomo High School, and Amanda Exmeyer, Social Studies teacher from Maconaquah High School. The panel responded to questions and shared insights about teaching at the high school level and how to be effective high school teachers.
