“My MBA peers are extremely intelligent and insightful people—bringing points of view from a variety of backgrounds. The fact that they contribute so much to the learning environment by sharing their day-to-day business experience is really exceptional.”

—Shannon Satterfield, Consultant, E.J. Stahl & Associates; Evening MBA Student

Kelley MBA maximizes career potential

Earning a Master of Business Administration (MBA) degree can lead to a variety of exciting opportunities—advancement, transition to a new field or industry and accomplishment of career and personal goals. Combine these factors with a degree from a nationally ranked school like the Indiana University Kelley School of Business, and the possibilities are endless.

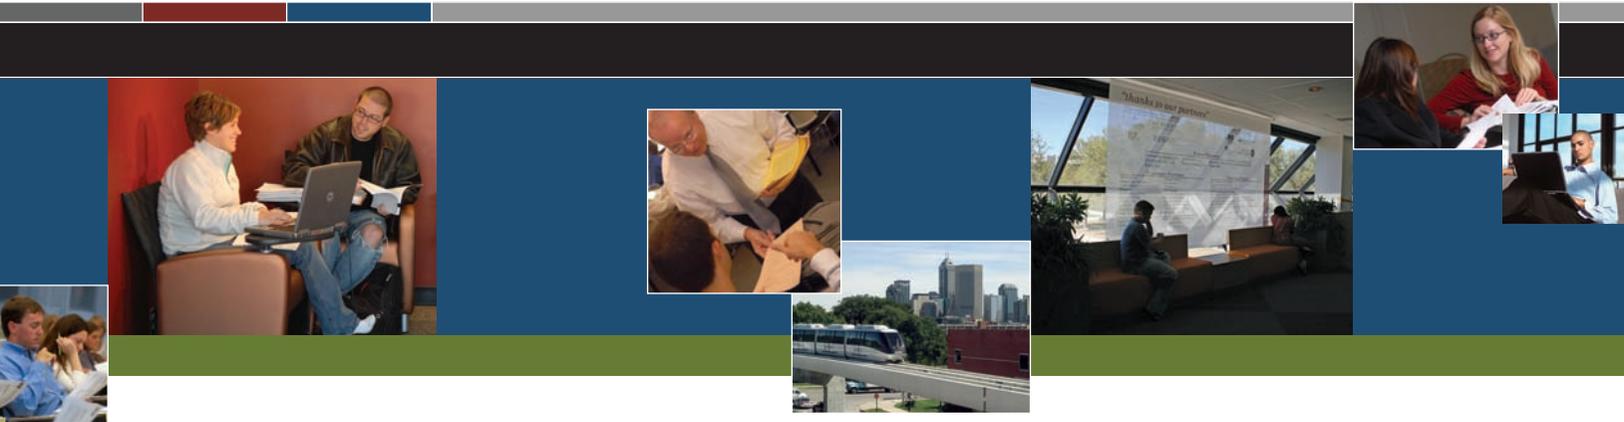

A top-quality team of internationally recognized Kelley faculty members provides the cornerstone for one of the nation's leading part-time MBA programs. Evening programs in both Indianapolis and Carmel offer central Indiana business professionals convenient access to an MBA program of the highest caliber at reasonable cost. With challenging and unique experiential learning opportunities and a comprehensive professional development program spanning all three years, Kelley's Evening MBA program is a logical choice for those with high expectations and the motivation to learn and achieve.

Consider these facts about the Evening MBA program:

- In 2007, U.S. News & World Report ranked the Kelley Evening MBA program 26th in the nation among part-time programs.

- Kelley's program is distinguished by integrated professional development services and a highly successful MBA enterprise program, offering students a chance to gain real-world experience in strategic business problem solving and consulting.
- One hundred sixty students are accepted each year into the Evening MBA program—60 each semester in Indianapolis and 40 every fall in Carmel.
- Experts in their fields, Kelley faculty publish ground-breaking research and work with leading companies, while also placing high priority on teaching and one-on-one interaction with students.
- Kelley Evening MBA students have an average of five years professional work experience.
- An undergraduate degree in business is not required to succeed in the MBA program. In fact, many students enter with no formal background or academic training in business.
- A growing list of dual degree programs allows professionals in medicine, law, science, technology, health administration and engineering to earn MBA degrees at Kelley.

Build a professional portfolio

Offering a total MBA experience unequalled in central Indiana, Kelley focuses on providing graduate students with the necessary tools—a solid foundation of knowledge and real-world perspective—to achieve their professional goals. Some of the highlights of Kelley’s progressive MBA program include:

Innovative MBA enterprise program

A leading-edge program pairing MBA students with central Indiana companies, Kelley’s MBA enterprise program offers an opportunity for students to enrich their education with practical, real-world experience. Ripe with the potential to challenge students beyond the capabilities of traditional classroom learning, the school’s enterprises engage second-year students in strategic assignments with local firms. Admission to the enterprise program is by application only. To date, nearly half of Kelley’s Evening MBA students participate in one of three enterprises:

- Discovery, Innovation and Ventures Enterprise (DIVE)
Focusing on entrepreneurship, this program connects students with start-up companies for in-depth consulting projects.
- Global Supply Chain Innovation Enterprise (gSCIE)
With access to leading distribution logistics companies, students address local firms’ supply chain challenges.
- Finance Development Enterprise (FIND)
In addition to consulting on finance-related projects, students will manage a Kelley School investment fund.

Valuable, diverse interaction with peers

Learning from top business faculty is just one part of what makes earning a Kelley MBA worthwhile. With the majority of Kelley Evening MBA students bringing at least five years of professional experience to the graduate-level classroom, Kelley students supplement academic learning with the informed, diverse perspectives of their peers from fields such as engineering, medicine, operations, customer service, law and science. Whether engaging in lively classroom discussions or participating alongside peers in group projects, students contribute valuable insight to the learning environment.

Unique international opportunities

From the small business to the international corporation, every company, product and service has the potential for global impact. Kelley’s Evening MBA program prepares students to thrive in this environment, introducing them to experiences such as the “China in Transition” summer course. A hands-on opportunity to gain international and consulting experience, this semester-long class features a two-week trip to mainland China. While there, Kelley students partner with their counterparts from City University of Hong Kong in a week-long consulting assignment culminating in a presentation to the Chinese host company.

“Some argue students attending part-time MBA programs are forced to forego networking opportunities. I found the opposite to be true in Kelley’s evening program. Not only was I able to gain access to the extensive networks of Kelley’s world-class instructors, but I was able to network with peers representing more than 60 companies in the Indianapolis area.”

—Heidi Hughes, Senior Operations Associate, Eli Lilly and Company; Evening MBA Graduate

Ongoing, focused professional development

Consisting of a lecture series, self-assessment tools, a weekend practical experience, career coaching and leadership development strategies, Kelley’s professional development program offers MBAs a comprehensive, focused and flexible program, specifically targeting the needs of working students with varied career interests. Professional development activities, anchored by coaching and robust qualitative assessment, run throughout the entire three-year program, ensuring students have ample time to consider and prepare a useful career development plan.

Comprehensive career counseling

The same suite of career services available to full-time MBA students in Bloomington is also available to Evening MBA students in Indianapolis and Carmel. Career coaching, resume preparation and interview practice help students position themselves for promotion in their current companies or transition to new employers. Kelley’s MBA programs attract high-paying Fortune 100 recruiters seeking to fill positions in the Midwest and around the world.

“Students who participate fully in professional development here at Kelley can expect to think meaningfully about who they are, what they want to do and what they’re made of. Answers to these questions and the honest feedback they receive from coaching are keys to helping them develop a strong career management plan for the future.”

—Bob Grimm, Clinical Associate Professor of Management;
Co-Director, Kelley Evening MBA Professional Development Program

Applying to the Evening MBA program

“I can't say enough good things about Kelley's Evening MBA program. It's been a tremendous life-changing experience for me. I came with a set of expectations and left with so much more.”

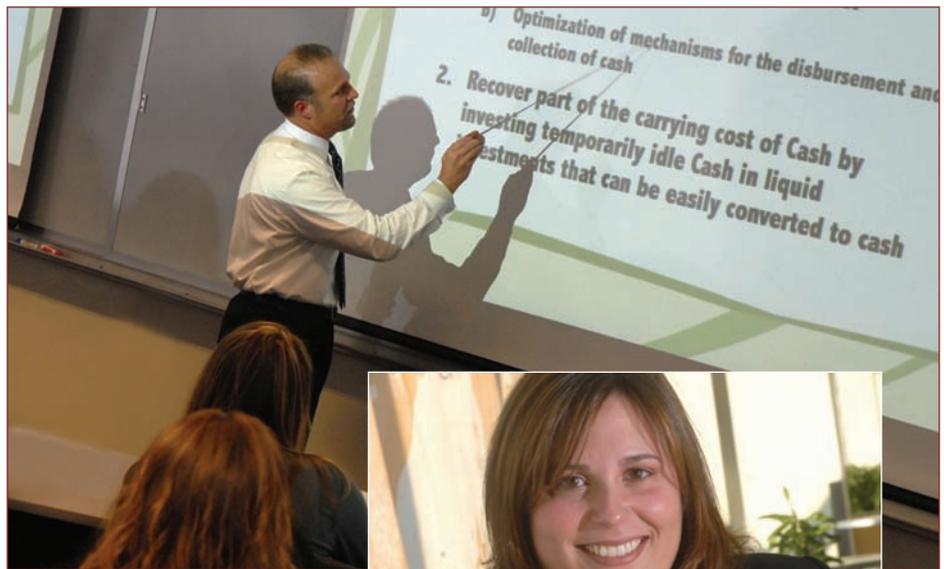

—Justin Hastie
Development Engineer, Carrier Corporation;
Evening MBA Graduate

Admission to Kelley's Evening MBA program is competitive. The school's goal is to bring together a group of motivated and talented students who bring as much to the program as they will gain from it. Due to the competitive nature of the Kelley admission process, a strong score on the Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT) is required for acceptance into the program. For information on GMAT preparation course options, contact the Kelley Evening MBA Program Office in Indianapolis at 317.274.4895.

Three cohorts are admitted each year. Two on the IUPUI campus (spring and fall) and one each fall in Carmel. All cohorts will finish the final year of their degree program on the IUPUI campus.

Darrell Brown, manager of MBA admissions and recruitment, in the Kelley Evening MBA Program Office is available to meet with prospective students to answer questions about the program. Although an interview is not part of the admission process, Kelley does welcome the opportunity to speak with interested applicants about the program.

Discover IUPUI—a leading urban university

“Our ability to secure enterprise projects for our students is due to Kelley’s reputation and stature in the business community. Offering students opportunities to get involved like this is something I haven’t been able to do at other universities. It really enriches the entire educational experience.”

—Mark Frohlich, Associate Professor of Operations Management; Co-Director, gSCIE Enterprise

With more than 29,000 students, IUPUI serves as a national model for today’s urban university. The campus, situated just blocks from the seat of Indiana government, scores of downtown businesses and many of the city’s cultural and entertainment venues, is home to 22 academic units granting degrees in more than 200 programs.
