1 UPCOMING PACE THEMESTER COURSE FOR FALL 2012

PACE-C 300 Issues in PACE, topic: Good Behavior, Bad Behavior in Public Life

This course will examine a variety of forms of public behavior ranging from social protest to civil disobedience to consumer boycotts to community mediation. Using historical and contemporary examples from the United States, we will consider our assumptions and judgments of what constitutes good and bad behavior and the overlap with appropriate and inappropriate behavior and effective and ineffective behavior in public life by both individuals and groups. A few areas in the public domain—electoral politics, the information commons, and environmental decisions—will ground our analysis of public behavior. Some questions that we will address in relation to these public spheres: How has the electoral system created good and bad patterns of behavior? What is the relationship between anonymity and good and bad behavior in communication between citizens and the sharing of public knowledge? What are the complexities of conflict, public speech, and good and bad behavior?

An important focus of our studies will be an examination of whether potential and actual conflict serves as a creative opportunity to approach divisive issues, choose behavior, and be effective as citizens. To that end, we will introduce theories, examples, and practices that can be used to make more effective behavioral choices as citizens, such as mediation and negotiation, active listening, democratic deliberation, cyber advocacy, and the like. Each student will have multiple opportunities to contribute his or her own perceptions and values to the construction of knowledge in this course. Each student will be encouraged to develop his or her understanding of what constitutes good and bad behavior in American public life.
