ALUMNI NEWSLETTER
Volume 8, Number 1 (issued twice yearly) May, 1963

Greetings from the Director

Again it is spring in Bloomington! We wish that each of our alumni could be here to enjoy it with us, for the campus is truly beautiful. Fortunately, several of you have been able to pay us a visit, and many of you have written to us about your activities; so now it is time for us to reciprocate through the Newsletter.

The University's building program is moving along at a rapid pace. We have been informed that our request for quarters in the proposed new University Library Center has been approved by the administrative officers of the University. We have written a program of our needs, projected to the year 1972, which has been incorporated in the program sent to the architect. The Division's quarters will be located on the ground floor of the building, completely separated from the library. The preliminary plans should be available from the architect by early summer. In the meantime, the new University Schools are progressing on schedule. It is expected that the elementary school will be completed in time for the opening of school in the fall and that the junior and senior high schools will be occupied by January 1, 1964. Some expansion of our present quarters in the Education Building should be possible after the adjoining University School is vacated.

Interest in our library science program at the regional campuses in Gary, South Bend, and Fort Wayne has exceeded our expectations and appears to be meeting a long felt need. The program in the Downtown campus in Indianapolis continues to be well supported with enrollments approximately the same as last year. And on the Bloomington campus the increase in enrollment continues, with projected attendance during the 1963 summer sessions the largest in our history. Donald Thompson, Librarian of Wabash College will be back on the faculty this summer, and one of our recent alumni, James Foyle of Pennsylvania State University, will also be a visiting faculty member.

For the coming year we have been authorized to add a full-time secretary to the staff, to increase our graduate assistantships, to offer two graduate fellowships at $1500 each, and to add a Professor of Library Science and Information Scientist to the faculty. This faculty member will teach courses in the area of science literature and documentation, will assist in developing a doctoral program in library science, and will spend approximately half-time in research and library development for the I.U. Aerospace Research Application Center, an agency established by contract between the Indiana University Foundation and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. With this added strength in our faculty we expect to move toward the establishment of a doctoral program within one or two years.

Our alumni dinner at the annual ALA Conference will be held on Tuesday, July 16, at Stouffers Restaurant (111 So. Wabash Avenue, Chicago). Tuesday night is available this year because the Newbery-Caldecott Dinner is being held on Monday. We shall look forward to seeing many of you on this pleasant occasion.

Best wishes from all of us on the faculty,

Margaret I. Rufsvold, Director

January-May, 1963

January 20-22. Miss Margaret Sheviak and Miss Margaret Griffin were co-instructors for the Indiana Library Association Workshop for librarians in Indiana. The program topic was Library Materials for Children and Adolescents. Mrs. Mildred Lowell, the workshop coordinator, made all arrangements for the two-day session, held in the Indiana Memorial Union conference rooms. Thirty-nine librarians from twenty-seven Indiana public libraries attended this 4th annual meeting.

January 26-27. Miss Rufsvold, Miss Baker, Dr. Lowell, and Dr. Hiatt attended the meeting of the American Association of Library Schools in Chicago. The program was devoted to discussion of basic core courses in accredited library schools.

February 6. Miss Sheviak spoke on "Using books and related materials with children," at the IU Student Branch of the Association for Childhood Education.

March 16. The Library Science Curriculum Committee composed of representatives from the four Indiana State colleges and universities met in Indianapolis at the Student Union Building, IU Medical School Campus, with Dr. McMullen presiding. This was the second meeting the Committee has held in an endeavor to reach agreement on a core content in courses in library science. A list of 102 reference books was adopted by unanimous consent for intensive study in basic reference courses. Each of the State institutions may include additional materials, presented by any method best suited to the needs of their students.

The Committee had an exploratory discussion also on the core material to be included in the basic adult selection course. Parameters for this course include ALA accreditation of the Indiana University program; school librarian educational requirements; importance of the non-book materials, particularly the newer media. After a period of study by each of the four institutions another meeting will be held on this selection course.

March 25. Dr. McMullen and Miss Christian were invited by Miss Elizabeth Burton, librarian, Naval Avionics Facility, Indianapolis, to present papers at the afternoon session, March 25, of the spring meeting of the Eastern Region NAFI (Naval Librarians). STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Library Science Club News Notes, 1962-63

President for the fall semester, 1962-63, Bradley Millard reports:
November 8, 1962: More than 50 members attended an evening meeting to hear Dr. Irvin Ehrenpreiss speak on his experiences while doing research at the Bodleian Library. Dr. Ehrenpreiss illustrated his talk with staff manuals of the library and acquainted his audience with many interesting facts concerning operational procedures.
December 15, 1962: The annual Christmas party was held at the home of Miss Margaret Griffin, again with more than 50 people attending. The evening's program was in charge of Robert Jaccaud, Vice-President of the club, assisted by Sandra Syman and others. Program included the reading of a Christmas story by Prof. Margaret Sheviak.

President Robert Jaccaud, president of the Club for the spring semester, 1963, gives the report on activities between February and May:
February, 1963: The Library Science Club's 1963 schedule began in February with a panel discussion by the faculty members of the Division of Library Science on the subject, "Why, the Library Profession?" Questioned on their reasons for entering the library profession, their reasons for teaching instead of remaining in the library field, and their greatest satisfaction gained from their library experience, the faculty provided a most revealing and inspiring program.
March, 1963: Even though no program was held in March most members of the Library Science Club were busy being escorts for the personnel interviewers. For the second year some twenty interviewers were escorted from the Indiana University Memorial Union to the Division of Library Science. This again proved to be a valuable experience for the students and quite an impressive one for the interviewers.
April, 1963: National Library Week was honored by the Club in April with a very worthwhile discussion on reading by eleven students of the University School. Moderated by Miss Marian Armstrong, Librarian in the University School, the students talked freely about their individual reading interests, and their ideas concerning libraries, paperbound books, and controversial books.
May, 1963: In spite of a cloudy wintry day, the Library Science Club held its Spring picnic at Miss Portia Christian's home on May 12. It proved to be an enjoyable and festive get-together before finals and the end of the semester.
