Our information technology (IT) infrastructure is not perfect and data can be corrupted by means both malicious and random. This talk covers some of the issues with IT infrastructure that lets data corruption creep in and NSF-funded work by the authors to augment a popular workflow management system (Pegasus) to provide increased scientific data assurances.

Humanities \(IDAH\) for a period of three years, effective July 1, 2017. In this new role, Michelle, together with co-director Kalani Craig from the Department of History, will be responsible for developing and implementing a strategic plan for IDAH's important functions of enabling research and creative activity in the digital arts and humanities and of carrying out pedagogical initiatives, including a new IDAH certificate program. Michelle's appointment to this position demonstrates recognition of her accomplishments and leadership in the digital humanities at IU, as well as within national and international organizations, and it offers an opportunity for the Libraries as a whole to become more deeply engaged in digital arts and humanities initiatives on campus. Michelle will be devoting 50% of her time to IDAH and will remain in her existing role as Head of Digital Collections Services in Library Technologies. I hope that you will join me in congratulating Michelle on her new appointment!

Erika Jenns is Leaving

Erika Jenns will be leaving the IU Libraries to take a job at the Southern Tier Library System in Corning, New York, where she will develop engagement opportunities and trainings and manage digital resources across the library system. Her last day in the office will be September 1. While we celebrate her move to an exciting new position with increased responsibilities, we are also very sad to see her leave. Erika's work in the Scholars' Commons and as part of Reference has been invaluable; under her leadership, the Scholars' Commons workshop series expanded to over one hundred offerings throughout the academic year. Erika developed the policies and procedures for exhibits in the Scholars' Commons, and has worked closely with campus and community partners to maintain an excellent rotation of new content both within the Scholars' Commons space and elsewhere in Wells Library. She is a thoughtful, reliable, and dedicated professional, and has brought excellence to all of her endeavors. Prior to her tenure as Scholarly Engagement Librarian, Erika held positions at the Lilly Library and the Wells Library as a graduate student. In the time she spent with the IU Libraries, she has become a much loved friend to many of her colleagues. Please join us in wishing her well in her new adventure.

Sarah Young is Leaving

Sarah Young has resigned effective September 1, 2017. Sarah has served as the Library Income Coordinator for the last two years. Prior to that she worked in Library Income as the Accounting Assistant. Sarah has done an excellent job in her position, particularly in eliminating unnecessary workflows and modernizing our statement and billing process. Please join me in wishing Sarah the best as she moves out of state with her family.
