Next Tuesday, April 22, is Earth Day! Earth Day is a day celebrating the planet, and is meant to encourage environmental protection. Earth Day began in 1970, and led to annual celebrations that consist of eco-friendly activities such as planting trees and gardens, or simply enjoying a picnic in the park. The Earth Day Network also coordinates events and campaigns year round, focusing on greening efforts to help preserve the environment. Happy Earth Day!

PLACE: Indiana Institute on Disability and Community, Bloomington, IN Call for Proposals

The Indiana Library Federation Reference Division invites proposals for 50 minute sessions to be presented at the 2014 Reference Division Conference, Connecting with Every Patron: Creating Inclusive Libraries on Friday, August 1 at the Indiana Institute on Disability and Community at Indiana University Bloomington. All professionals, faculty, and staff who work in libraries or provide community services to diverse groups are invited to submit a proposal.

Proposal Topics

The conference planning committee especially encourages proposals in the following areas:

- Engaging Millennials
- Providing library services for adults on the autism spectrum
- Reaching home bound patrons when bookmobiles aren't an option
- Creating inclusive library programming for patrons with mental health concerns
- Reaching out to undocumented community members
- Providing library services for international patrons
- Cultural competencies for reference workers
- The Library's role in livable communities
- Assistive Technology in the Library
- Connecting with under served patron groups

Proposal Topics:

The conference planning committee would also like to extend an invitation for poster proposals on topics related to inclusive libraries which will be displayed throughout the day.

Submission:

Please submit all proposals here.

Proposal Deadline:

All proposals are due by Sunday, April 20.

Evaluation and Acceptance:

All submitters will be notified regarding their status of their proposals by Friday, April 25.

Thank you for your interest in presenting at the ILF Reference Division Conference!

The Library User Experience: Why it matters and how it can be improved

Mark Notess, Head, User Experience and Digital Media Services
User Experience and Digital Media Services

User Experience (UX) encompasses not just usability but a customer's total experience of products, services, and organizations. This talk focuses on the technology-mediated experience people have with the Libraries. I begin by explaining the key concepts of UX and give some examples of why it matters to us. I will describe a range of UX methods for improving UX and will talk about how those methods can be applied to technology-based products and services in the Libraries. I will also summarize the charter of the new UX consulting group in the Bloomington Libraries and describe we can assist with UX improvements. Although this talk will focus on libraries, most of it will apply to any technology-based project.

Presentations will also be broadcast via Adobe Connect. Go to <http://breeze.iu.edu/diglib> to view and listen to the presentation. If you are not a registered user for Connect Meeting/Breeze, select the "Enter as a Guest" option.

You can also follow and contribute to the presentation and discussion on twitter: #dlbb.

The Digital Library Brown Bag series is held Wednesdays in the Herman B Wells Library room E174 from 12:00pm - 1:00pm. The complete schedule, including abstracts, is available here.

To receive a reminder and an abstract for each presentation, send an email to iulist@iulist.indiana.edu with the message body: sub dl-brownbag-I Your Full Name

The Digital Library Brown Bag Series is part of the Digital Initiatives track of the Scholars' Commons Series. As research initiatives increasingly rely on technology as a significant mode for inquiry, the Digital Initiatives track will address cutting-edge and emerging topics that shape this new scholarly endeavor. The Scholars' Commons Series features a full schedule of events ranging from basic introductions to core research tools, to workshops for dissertation writers, to talks by cutting edge digital scholars. A Sample of Scheduled Sessions:

We > Me

Patrick Sweeney

The shortest poem in the English language is especially true in librarianship. We are each individually tasked with serving our communities but what happens when we include our community members in our services? By utilizing patron driven acquisitions, user created programming, community centered strategic planning, and service models that include the public in planning, we can expand our programs and services in a way that is most meaningful to our communities. After all, who knows better about our patron's needs than the patrons themselves? This session will discuss the successes and failures of deep community involvement in librarianship in a discussion group format.

Program Planning to Impact

Fatima Perkins

Finding a wonderful program at the library is not hard! However, planning impactful programs can be a challenge. This workshop will explore the basics of using planning tools and outcome measures to deliver meaningful library programs/services.

IU Information Literacy Colloquium: Call for Proposals

EVENT: Third Annual Indiana University Libraries Information Literacy Colloquium

DATE: Friday, August 1

PLACE: IU South Bend in South Bend, IN

The Third Annual Indiana University Libraries Information Literacy Colloquium seeks engaging, innovative, and energizing proposals related to the conference theme: Metaliteracy: Seeking Connections and Challenging Traditions.

We seek thought-provoking proposals that examine metaliteracy, which is emerging as a relevant and interesting paradigm that is reshaping the way we think of information literacy and library instruction. As defined by Mackey and Jacobson \(2011\),

"Metaliteracy promotes critical thinking and collaboration in a digital age, providing a comprehensive framework to effectively participate in social media and online communities. It is a unified construct that supports the acquisition, production, and sharing of knowledge in collaborative online communities. Metaliteracy challenges traditional skills-based approaches to information literacy by recognizing related literacy types and incorporating emerging technologies. Standard definitions of information literacy are insufficient for the

Moreover, the current ongoing revision of the ACRL standards includes metaliteracy as an "important anchoring element" in the new Framework for Information Literacy for Higher Education.

This year's Colloquium invites you to investigate the implications metaliteracy has for library instruction theory and practice. Questions to consider include, but are not limited to: What do instruction librarians need to know about metaliteracy? What does metaliteracy look like, and what does it entail? How does it influence what we do in the library instruction classroom? How does this shape our learning outcomes and pedagogy? How do we assess metaliteracy? Clearly, metaliteracy is a stimulating and exciting concept that has much to offer library instruction and we hope that the Colloquium will contribute significant advances to the current conversations on this topic.

Proposal guidelines:

Proposals for 45-minute presentations or 45-minute roundtable discussions should be no more than 250 words in length and should contain at least two learning outcomes. Proposals should be submitted via the online conference proposal form.

All proposals should clearly relate to the conference theme and offer innovative and interesting insights that will enhance the learning of the Colloquium community.

Proposal deadline:

May 16. Proposal notifications will occur by May 30.

Register for the IU Librarians Health Sciences Summit

The second IU Librarians Health Sciences Summit will be held on June 17 at the Ruth Lilly Medical Library in Indianapolis. Registration is free and open to all Indiana University librarians.

The day will proceed much like last year's schedule, starting at 8:30am and ending at 3:00pm. Several one hour, hands-on classes will be provided on various topics of interest to those working in the health sciences. Hands-on literature search training will include utilizing PubMed Medline and searching biomedical, nursing, allied health, public health, and psychology databases and other information resources. New this year will be a session on social work research. Breakfast and lunch will be provided. Last year we had attendees from every IU campus, so networking/sharing time will be an important part of the schedule.

For a brochure, click here (you can also register from this form).

OR

Register directly here.

Please feel free to forward this to any IU librarian, regardless of their liaison role. All are welcome!

Contact Elaine Skopelja at 317-274-358 or eskopelj@iu.edu if you have any questions.
