IU Student Employment Office Award*

Bara Bandera, a student employee of the Fine Arts Library since Fall 1999, has been named IU-Bloomington's 2003 Student Employee of the Year. Presented annually by the IU Student Employment Office, this award recognizes one student on the Bloomington campus who has attained a high standard of achievement in their academic studies as well as their job performance and who has also made a significant contribution to the IU community in other ways.

Bara has earned the well-deserved respect of the Fine Arts Library staff and School of Fine Arts staff, faculty and students. We are proud of her accomplishments and are delighted that she is a member of our team!

LIBRARY NEWS

*Workshop at Librarians' Day

One of the workshops being presented at the April 25th Librarians' Day is "The Institutional Repository," which is being given by Randall Halverson and Amy Hatfield. If you are planning to attend this workshop, please read this information from them:

"The Institutional Repository Forum will be structured as follows:

1. Opening Presentation - Institutional Repository general background and overview.
2. Group discussion - Attendees move* into one of two groups: a "faculty" group and a "librarian" group. Each group will be given the same set of questions to explore regarding Institutional Repository issues; the groups will explore these according to their (faculty or librarian) perspective.
3. Open discussion & sharing - Attendees will reconvene and the recorded answers from each group will be shared.
4. Wrap up

*Attendees are encouraged to select a perspective he or she would like to explore, faculty or librarian, and read the priming material provided herein before the forum. Forty five minutes is not a lot of time for what we hope to accomplish, but we expect the session to be fun and valuable."
