**Jenkins Award*

This years William Evans Jenkins Librarian Award has been given to Lois Heiser, Head Emerita of the Geology Library at Indiana University-Bloomington. The Jenkins Award, named after a former chief librarian at Indiana University, is made in recognition of truly outstanding contributions to the Indiana University Libraries or to the library profession in general by a present or former librarian at IU-Bloomington. The award will be presented to Heiser at a meeting of the Bloomington Library Faculty on April 29th, and she will also be recognized at the IU Libraries Retirement and Recognition Reception on May 3rd.

Heiser received her undergraduate degree in German language and literature and masters degree in library science from Indiana University. She served the IU Libraries for 40 years as student worker, support staff member, then librarian before her retirement in 2001. She is being recognized for her contribution to both Indiana University and the library profession. She played a significant role in achieving academic status for librarians and in the founding of the Indiana University Librarians Association, of which she served as the first president. As the Head of the Geology Library from 1979 to 2001, she provided strong leadership for the Libraries in the adoption of technology, from online catalogs to databases, CD-ROMs, Web sites, and digitized historical materials. Elizabeth Hanson, who was the acting Head after Lois, adds that providing excellent reference service was extremely important to her; users came first with her, and they knew it. Heiser served for eleven years on the Bloomington Faculty Council and its various committees, thirteen years on the Bloomington Library Faculty Council, and seven years on the Indiana University Library Faculty Council. Beyond Indiana University, she held the highest offices in the Geoscience Information Society and the American Federation of Teachers.

Heiser has also been much appreciated by her colleagues for her personal qualities: generosity, integrity, and unstinting support for others. Gary Wiggins, Coordinator of the Science Libraries, notes: Loiss insightful comments on various issues, coupled with her keen sense of humor, were often just the thing that was needed to resolve conflicting points of view. Julie Bobay, Walden Librarian, says that Lois served many roles for her as she developed her own career: wise advisor, trusted colleague, source of support, and a source of guaranteed laughter, often when it was most needed. Bobay adds: Like Mr. Jenkins, Lois remained true to her ideals of librarianship over several decades, never wavering from her commitment to excellence.

*Indiana SLA Program Announcement

Dialog Quantum2 Seminar
Achieving Results Through Relationships: The Power of Influence

Indiana Special Libraries Association (InSLA) Program
5:30PM, May 21, 2002
Hyatt Hotel / National City Bank building Downtown Indianapolis

Program Details:

The second spring InSLA meeting will be at the Indiana Chamber of Commerce (a one-person library) to finalize the InSLA officers slate for 2002, dinner and the Quantum professional development presentation. A brief tour of the Business Research Center will also be available.

Quantum professional development programs are sponsored by the Dialog Corporation. Our presenter will be Patricia Currie Blume, Dialog Information Consultant.

For more information about Quantum seminars, see the online brochure at <http://quantum.dialog.com/about/quantum.pdf>

Quantum Session Description:

Achieving Results Through Relationships: The Power of Influence. Many information professionals are in positions of management or authority to effect change. Others are building the early stages of their careers and consider their leadership scope moderate. Yet all have an opportunity to assume a proactive role in creating positive results for their organizations. This session addresses the challenges of a work environment characterized by relentless change, and focuses on techniques for building the credibility and relationships necessary to inspire productive change. How do you advance along the path from "service provider" to "valued advisor"? How do you ensure that colleagues and management understand the true value you deliver? This session provides practical guidance on building relationships for success.

Door Prizes:

Two $25 gift certificates redeemable at any Olive Garden or Red Lobster location.

Meal Details:

Professionally catered dinner with vegetarian options.

Building Location:

The Chamber is located in downtown Indianapolis in the Hyatt Hotel / National City Bank building, 115 W Washington St., Suite 850 South.

The building complex takes up entire block between S. Illinois St, S. Capitol, W. Washington St. and W. Maryland St. (these are all one-way streets). This is the block west of Circle Center Mall.

LIBRARY EVENTS

**Upcoming Wylie House Museum Special Events*

On Saturday, May 04, from 2 pm until 4 pm, Bloomington's Wylie House Museum will offer "The Discerning Eye", a class in identifying and collecting lace, quilts, dolls, and other fabric-based and fabric-related items. The instructor, Ana Weill, will bring many examples of her own, but encourages students to also bring theirs. The class fee is $10 and enrollment is limited to 25. For more information or to register, call (812) 855-6224 or email sbrunoeh@indiana.edu

On Saturday, May 11, from 10 am until 4 pm, Bloomington's Wylie House Museum will hold its Second Annual Plant Sale. Vegetables, herbs, and indoor and outdoor flowers and decorative plants will all be offered, mostly modern varieties. For more information, call (812) 855-6224 or email sbrunoeh@indiana.edu

For a special Mother's Day treat, or just to treat yourself, come to Bloomington's Wylie House Museum on Sunday, May 12, at 2 pm for a free concert of period music. Playing and singing will be the artists featured on the museum's first CD, "Wylie House: Music from the Parlor". Light refreshments will follow. Seating is limited. For more information, call (812) 855-6224 or email jburgess@indiana.edu
