John Cash Retires

John Cash has retired from his position as Monographic Document Processor in Technical Services; his last day was December 30, 2016. He joined the Libraries originally as a retrospective cataloger in Technical Services in 1996. On May 1, 2000, he was reassigned to Government Publications, where he worked many years as the Federal Depository Library Program documents processor. In 2002, John was reassigned to the Monographic Copy Cataloging Unit in Technical Services. From 2013, he worked in the Monographic Text Cataloging unit. For many years, he supervised students working with the documents collections. He also contributed to the retrospective cataloging of the physical government documents collection and documents record load cleanup in IUCAT. John earned his MLS from Indiana University in 2005. He also participated as union representative on library committees and served as an officer and member of Indiana Networking for Documents and Information of Government Organizations (INDIGO), a statewide organization advocating the use of government information in libraries. After retiring, John plans to spend more time with his family. We wish him well in retirement.
