WELCOME!

GLBT Student Support Services

Indiana University - Bloomington Indiana

Welcome to the GLBTSSS:

The sign that you'll see when you enter the GLBT Office at IU reads: "Welcome Home!" and that's just what many people feel when they come into our space in an aging 2-story brick home in the heart of campus.

In need of a friendly ear or a supportive shoulder? Seeking some current information about glbt issues? Interested in being an advocate for the queer community? Then we might just be the place for you!

Whether you're a potential or current student, a curious friend or a concerned parent, or just someone who wants to know how glbt issues are addressed here in the heartland, you, too, are welcome.

Stop in, email us, or explore our web site to see how Indiana University in Bloomington is continuing the legacy of a professor named Kinsey who wandered this campus a half century ago and brought the issue of sexual diversity to national prominence.

Mission Statement:

The IU GLBT Office provides mentoring, counsel and support to the campus of Indiana University and the city of Bloomington through networking, collaboration, education, outreach and consulting in order to create a climate where all community members can promote and defend diversity.
