INTERIM ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF OPERATIONS FOR LIBRARY INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

I have asked Vern Wilkins to assume the role of interim Assistant Director/Operations Manager for Library Information Technology, to replace Ralph Quarles as Ralph moves on to new endeavors. In light of our plans to review all of the library technology areas for the library, including LIT and DLP over the next six months, we are not planning to post Ralph's position in the immediate future.

Vern brings a great deal of experience and dedication to library information technology, and has always had an inquiring mind and interest in exploring new technologies and processes. He has an M.L.S from the University at Buffalo and previously worked as a systems librarian with Millard Fillmore Health System, in Buffalo, NY, before coming to Indiana University in 1998. As Senior Technology Specialist for the Wells Library Vern has managed the deployment of numerous new technologies, maintained a secure computing environment, and managed many of LIT's largest projects, including the staff and public workstation upgrades.
