The Vietnam War/American War Oral History project aims to identify engaging ways to bring scholars and the general public in direct contact with the lived experiences of both American and Vietnamese combatants or civilians who participated in the Vietnam War/American War.

The project's goal is record, preserve/archive, and make accessible to the public oral history interviews with those who fought and others who were impacted (including unheard voices) on all sides of the Vietnam War/American War in Vietnam and to emphasize listening across difference.

The project has evolved from initial concept through several prototype versions of the interface and advanced capabilities. In summer 2018, a funded symposium brought scholars and technology experts to campus to consult with the project team as we prepare for national funding opportunities.

Staff News

Lori Duggan Appointed Head of Acquisitions

I am pleased to announce that Lori Duggan has been appointed Head of the Acquisitions department (Technical Services), effective February 1, 2019.

In her position as Head, Electronic Resources Acquisitions (ERA), Lori expertly managed the complex life cycle of the Libraries' electronic resources since July 2008. As an e-resources acquisitions librarian, she has extensive expertise in the areas of licensing agreements, rights management, copyright, fair use, and other intellectual property issues. For over ten years, Lori has inspired confidence in her colleagues through her acquisitions expertise and continual focus on creating for our users a robust e-resources delivery experience with minimal access interruptions.

Lori's experience and broad knowledge of current acquisitions issues and trends, collection budget management and accounting practices has prepared her well for this expanded leadership role. Her project management skills, proven effectiveness as a supervisor, and inclusive leadership style will be invaluable as the Acquisitions department continues to explore and implement new content acquisition models.

Please join me in congratulating Lori on her new position!
