Research Incentive Grant Fund Application Deadline

Need monetary support for research or research-related activities? The InULA Grants Fund is intended to encourage and support research by providing funding for projects of any size or scope. Grant applications are now being accepted through October 15, 2019. Guidelines and application information can be found at: inula-research-incentive-fund-guidelines. You must be a current member of InULA to be eligible. The InULA Grants and Scholarship Committee will review grant applications using a newly-revised rubric. In the case of equally meritorious proposals, those of non-tenured librarians may be given priority because it is often difficult for beginning researchers to obtain research grants. Recommendations will then be made to the InULA Executive Board for approval and funding. Notice of awards is provided to applicants as soon as possible. Can't get an application in by October 15? The next fund deadlines will be January 15, 2020 and April 15, 2020

Please contact the committee chair for more information or with questions.

Cyberinfrastructure finally caught up with the vision for biodiversity 'big data' online. Species are populations, and our knowledge of species is documented by preserved specimens. The IU Herbarium has 161,000+ specimens. Symbiota is a multi-institutional platform that accommodates specimen- and species-level images and information, and our regional instance for vascular plants is the Consortium of Midwest Herbaria data portal (<http://midwestherbaria.org>). To efficiently digitize the specimens, each was barcoded and photographed, with each image renamed as the barcode, and a skeletal database record created with the barcode, species name, and provenance (down to the level of U.S. counties). IU Libraries built the Imago digital repository (<https://imago.indiana.edu>), based on technology from the Samvera open source community, and quality-control pipelines to manage the digital resources being created by the IU Herbarium and other biological research collections. Lori Frye, Fashion Design, partners with Kelly Richardson, Sage Collection and Dina Kellams, University Archives, to discuss how archival materials from their collections intertwined to shed light on a graduation dress from 1879 and the intriguing woman to whom it belonged. The research for this project began in order to fill in missing details related to the graduation dress, but quickly grew into a fascinating exploration into gender, dress, and identity.

Keith Buckley Retires

After 40 years with the Law Library, Keith Buckley is retiring. His last day was September 30. Keith was appointed reference librarian in 1980, named Collection Development librarian in 1999, and appointed Assistant Director for Public Services in 2012. With the retirement of Linda Fariss, Keith was named Interim Director of the Jerome Hall Law Library in January 2017, and appointed permanent Director and Senior Lecturer in Law in January 2018. Keith's near-photographic memory for the Law Library's print collection, and his deep institutional memory of the Law School and Law Library's history will be greatly missed, but we wish him a happy and healthy retirement! A national search for a new director will begin later this year; in his stead, Ashley Ahlbrand has been appointed Interim Director of the Law Library.

As Cartographic Resources Cataloger, Oliver Schowalter-Hay cataloged MANY maps, contributed records to the Big Ten Academic Alliance Geoportal, and served the Libraries and the University by offering his expertise to staff within and outside of the Cataloging Department. Oliver's last day was September 27. Those who knew Oliver will miss his steady, friendly nature and his thoughtful, positive attitude. We wish Oliver nothing but the best in his future endeavors.
