Erin will contribute to university and campus-wide initiatives to develop policies, services, and infrastructure that enable faculty and students to curate, share, and preserve their research data. Chris Phillips Resigns

Please join me in thanking Chris Phillips, Life Sciences Library Branch Coordinator, for 12 years of excellent service. Chris has served us well by being always generous with his time and helpful to the Biology, Medical Sciences, and Nursing Departments and Libraries' Staff. Chris started with IUL in 1995 in Access Services and then went on to what is present-day GIMMS in 1997. I know our days without Chris's attention to our community of users will be rough seas. His positive demeanor and forward-thinking approach to solving myriad issues for students and faculty alike will be missed. Chris spent years cultivating relationships with faculty and staff and we will miss his breadth of support.

Chris has found an excellent opportunity with the Federal Government. His last day with us is Friday October 14. Please join me in thanking Chris! We will miss you!
