Wireless technology is being used to communicate and transfer data between users without phone lines or network connections. Institutions such as Carnegie Mellon University, the George Washington University, and the State Library of Iowa recently installed wireless LANs. Find out how this technology can benefit information professionals and their users.

AGENDA:

9 am Registration and continental breakfast

9:30 am Introductions and IOLUG business

10 am Keynote presentation: "Wireless Networking"
Hear Michael Conway and George Bishop of Ovid Elsie Area Schools, Elsie, Michigan, give an overview of this new technology and discuss how they've used some of its applications.

11:30 am Lunch

1 pm Concurrent sessions
Session A: "A vendor's perspective: what's coming?"
A vendor representative addresses future developments.

6. ILF DISTRICT IV AT GREENWOOD PUBLIC LIBRARY IN OCTOBER

The Indiana Library Federation District IV held its annual meeting at the Greenwood Public Library on October 22. The theme of the meeting was "Window on the World: Unique Patrons." One hundred and twenty-five librarians from Central Indiana registered for the meeting.

The IU Libraries were well represented on this very successful program. Rosanne Cordell, I.U. South Bend, spoke about "The Intellectual Freedom Climate in Indiana." Robin Crumrin and Sharon Hay, IUPUI University Library conducted a session entitled, "There's No Place Like Homepages." Sue London, IU School of Medicine Library, spoke about "Medical Reference." Bill Orme, IUPUI University Library discussed the future of CD-ROM in American libraries, "Discs, Discs Everywhere...But Which Ones Do I Choose." Vania Goodwin, IUPUI University Library was one of the members of the Planning Committee.
