2. Announcements of Interest

The Spring 2010 African Studies Interdisciplinary Graduate Seminar (AFRI-A 731) will be taught in conjunction with FOLK-F 609) by Ruth Stone, Professor of Ethnomusicology and Associate Vice Provost for Research. Theme:

Voices and Values in Colonial Relationships and African Performance The course focuses on dialogues and conversations that occur in performances in Africa, particularly within colonial relationships. Music, dance, theater, literature, and popular culture create sites where the dominant and the dominated alike position and reposition themselves. Students will engage with guest speakers who address some examples of these voices and values as they have played out. Students will also conduct research in an archive on the Bloomington campus or elsewhere. Drawing upon primary sources, those students taking the class for 3 credits will write a paper, analyzing at least two voices in performance contexts and how they have interrelated in a real or metaphorical dialogue in the context of Africa.

SPEA Nonprofit Toolkit Symposium

The Non Profit Alliance of Monroe County and Indiana University's School of Public and Environmental Affairs (SPEA) present a 1 day symposium comprised of guest lecturers from a wide array of expertise on Major Gifts, Board Development, Event Planning, Internal Dispute Resolution, Media Relations and Planned Giving. Many of the presenters are professors within SPEA's #1 nationally-ranked Master of Public Affairs (MPA) program in Nonprofit Management as well as community leaders and consultants in their respective fields. Executive directors, board members, fund development managers, students of all focus areas and anyone else with an interest in nonprofit management skills are encouraged to attend this exciting event. Whether you're a veteran director just needing to brush up on your skills, or you're a student getting ready to enter the workforce, this symposium will provide you with the framework to address the issues you face on a daily basis. Don't miss this opportunity—registration is limited!!

Date: Friday, November 6, 2009

Times: Check-in begins at 8:00 am Friday.
Presentations will go from 8:30 to 4:50 with an hour and forty minutes for lunch.

Location: Bloomington, IN City Hall 401 N. Morton St.

Cost: $35 for professionals/$15 for students
(Lunch and light breakfast are included)
You may pay with cash, credit cards or checks made payable to the Non Profit Alliance.

Registration: Email iuspeatoolkit@gmail.com to receive the electronic registration form by November 3.

3. Conferences/ Call for Papers

Sports in Africa: Politics and Globalization

March 5- 6, 2010

Ohio University, Athens Ohio

Since its inception in 2004, the Sports in Africa Symposium has sought to foster meaningful dialogue on the interface of sports and Africa among academics, practitioners, media, NGOs and the public. The first five conferences covered a range of topics across time and disciplines. The presentations have explored the relationships among sport and broader themes such as politics, culture, gender, disability, cooperation, conflict, history, migration, mass media, and development.

The conference organizers sincerely hope that the dialogue will be pursued beyond this initiative, and are planning a symposium that will be not only intellectually engaging, but also a source of inspiration for future scholarly and practical endeavors.

The deadline for presentation abstract submissions is January 3, 2010.

The Indiana University Religious Studies Graduate Symposium

Religion, Nature, and Innovation

Thursday, February 25th – Friday, February 26th, 2010

Call for Papers

In conjunction with the Indiana University-Bloomington College of Arts and Sciences 'themester' on "Evolution, Diversity, and Change," the graduate students in the IUB Religious Studies Department are hosting a symposium titled "Religion, Nature, and Innovation." Though the university-wide interest is in marking the 200th anniversary of the birth of Charles Darwin and the 150th anniversary of the publication of Darwin's On the Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection, we welcome papers focused not only on evolution but a variety of other topics related to nature and innovation broadly construed.

We anticipate topics such as conceptions of nature; the relationship of traditions to environmental movements; innovations in human attempts to manipulate, care for, or submit to the natural world; theories about the natural and supernatural; paradigms of change and evolution within the field of religious studies; understandings of nature in ethics and conceptions of authority; or the nature of religion. We welcome papers from graduate students in any departments and disciplines, beyond religious studies.

Please submit a 300-word abstract by Friday, January 8th, 2010 to iugradconf@gmail.com

3. Jobs and Fellowships

The Department of Political Science at the College of Charleston SC, invites applications for a full time, tenure track assistant professor position beginning fall 2010 in comparative politics with an African area specialization and expertise. In addition to teaching the survey "Politics of Africa" course and developing additional courses related to African countries, the successful candidate will contribute to the department's international and comparative curriculum. The ability to offer undergraduate courses in political theory, including both traditional and non-traditional perspectives on key normative concepts and their application to contemporary political issues is highly desirable. Candidates must possess a PhD in Political Science or related field. The normal teaching load is three courses per semester.

Applicants should submit a letter of application, a curriculum vita, copies of graduate transcripts, statements of teaching and research interests, evidence of teaching effectiveness (including, but not limited to course syllabi and course evaluations), examples of scholarly research, and three letters of reference to Comparative Politics Search Committee, Department of Political Science, College of Charleston, 66 George Street, Charleston, SC 29424. Review of applications will begin November 30, 2009 and continue until the position is filled. The College of Charleston is an AA/EO employer and strongly encourages women and minority candidates to apply.
