Homeland Security Working Group of the Federal Geographic Data Committee*

Linda Zellmer has been appointed to serve on the Homeland Security Working Group of the Federal Geographic Data Committee. She will be one of two librarians on the Working Group, and will be representing the needs of library and academic users of geospatial information. The Group will work to: (A) develop principles and guidelines that can be used to evaluate the need to reduce or eliminate public access to geospatial information for reasons of Homeland Security, (B) clarify the implications of publicly accessible geospatial information, and the implications of reduced access to data that has, until now, been publicly available and (C) develop criteria to evaluate the sensitivity of data and identify ways that organizations can balance security concerns and public information access.

The group hopes to complete their work by the end of the year.

Congratulations, Linda!
