

ONE HUNDRED SEVENTY-NINTH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT

Dear Friends:

Welcome to Indiana University's 2008 Commencement. Together, on this great day of celebration, we pause to honor the tremendous accomplishments of our graduates. This is their shining moment.

Coming from across the state of Indiana, throughout the nation, and around the world, they have become a part of the fabric of excellence woven at Indiana University over the course of nearly two centuries. In subjects ranging from accounting to zoology, they have drawn on their intelligence, talents, and tenacity to achieve mastery and prepare for the challenges of tomorrow. We honor their achievements today and recognize the challenges they have already faced, and overcome, as they have pursued their dreams.

This day has been years in the making: years of study and years of support. Our graduates have reached this wonderful day propelled by the love, encouragement, and faith of their families and friends. The strength of that support helps each of us achieve our highest aspirations and deserves our deepest gratitude. Today is as much a day to share that gratitude as to celebrate.

Indiana University's class of 2008 will always be a part of IU's rich and living history. Having dedicated themselves to the pursuit of academic excellence, driven by curiosity and intellectual passion, our graduates are now poised on the cusp of ever greater accomplishments. We will remember and celebrate them always, wishing them the greatest success in the future.

Most sincerely,

Michael A. McRobbie
President

Glimpses of Commencements Past

"The Commencement of 1833 was held in the new chapel, the orchestra composed of two flutes, & one of them cracked—imagine the discord. Dr. Wylie whispers to a professor: 'What makes more noise than a pig in a gate?' Reply: 'I give it up.' The Dr. turning his thumb towards the orchestra, says, 'Two of them.'"

—E. N. Elliott, faculty member, in a letter to Theophilus Wylie, 1833

"The Commencement exercises of 1855 were held in the locust grove in front of the Preparatory building, and the addresses of the graduating class, of which I was a member, were pronounced in the open, a good reminder of the academic groves of ancient Athens."

—John W. Foster, Valedictorian, 1855, writing in "Memories of I.U., 1851–55"

"We need the institutions that teach the broad cultural development which this nation needs more than it needs anything else—if it is to be worthwhile that this experiment in free government should have been tried on this continent."

—President Theodore Roosevelt,
IU Commencement address, 1918

"Society, through government, through philanthropy, and through the sacrifices of individual families, has supported higher education largely because we as a nation believe that college-trained men and women offer us our best hope of leadership equal to our needs."

—University Chancellor Herman B Wells,
IU Commencement address, 1988

"In short, banish mediocrity, seek excellence, embrace humanity."

—Jane Pauley, broadcaster and reporter,
IU Commencement address, 1990

"The strength of this country depends not on the size of its economy or the might of its armies, but on the character and enlightenment of its people."

—Congressman Lee H. Hamilton,
IU Commencement address, 1991

"If someone were to ask me casually about life, I would simply say, 'Play it like you feel it, baby, and live it up, kid. You'll be all right.'"

—John Mellencamp, rock musician,
IU Commencement address, 2000

"Let us accept the notion of a frontier, in that American sense, not as a border or a limit, but something unknowable, yet reachable, something with risks, but great rewards if we clear ground and build correctly. Let us go for frontiers, not shy away from them."

—University Chancellor Kenneth R. R. Gros
Louis, IU Commencement address, 2001

"Take time in the aftermath of a game or a business day to know, commiserate and enjoy your contemporaries, your team. They are partners in the struggle. They are good friends. If they really care, they'll dare you to be good, even push you to be great."

—Dick Enberg, sports broadcaster, IU
Commencement address, 2002

COMMENCEMENT CEREMONIES

The audience is requested to remain until the conclusion of the ceremonies.

The exercises of the one hundred seventy-ninth annual Commencement are enacted today at Indiana University Bloomington. The counterpart of the pageantry enacted each year on campuses all over the world, it is the solemn climax and recognition of the graduates' years of study and preparation for responsibility.

To help spectators understand the significance of the ceremonies, the following description is furnished.

PROCESSION

Leading the procession immediately behind the flag bearers is the grand marshal, bearing the ceremonial Mace, emblematic of the authority of the state and of the university. The grand marshal is attired in a white brocade gown with a gold metallic tassel. A gold satin sash with gold tassels hangs from the shoulder. Immediately following the grand marshal are the president and members of the trustees of the university. The president, as his badge of office, wears a jewel, emblematic of the history of the state and of the university. Other marshals wear shoulder sashes of various colors and designs.

Led by the marshals, the candidates march behind the identification banners of the respective schools that recommended them for their degrees. They are:

College of Arts and Sciences
Indiana University Kelley School of Business
School of Continuing Studies
School of Education
School of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation
School of Informatics
School of Journalism
School of Law
School of Library and Information Science
School of Medicine
Indiana University Jacobs School of Music
School of Nursing
School of Optometry
School of Public and Environmental Affairs
School of Social Work
University Graduate School

As the candidates reach their seats, the members of the faculties of Indiana University march in, wearing the colorful hoods of the colleges and universities from which they were graduates. The climax of the processional brings to the platform the trustees of the university, the deans of the various schools, honorary degree recipients, state officials, and university officers.

The trustees of the university can be identified by their red gowns, which have red velvet panels and red velvet chevrons on the sleeves. The panels and chevrons are outlined in cream, and an Indiana University seal appears on the left panel. The trustees wear black velvet caps with gold metallic tassels.

ACADEMIC ATTIRE

All candidates for degrees and those who hold these degrees, including university officials and faculty and visiting dignitaries, are attired in traditional caps and gowns. The basic color for most caps and gowns is formal black. However, recipients of different degrees wear distinctive tassels on their caps (the flat, square caps are called mortarboards) and hoods of various hues draped down the backs of the gowns.

CAPS

Candidates for degrees wear the regulation cap with the tassel color appropriate to the degree being conferred.

The list of tassel colors follows:

Arts and Sciences—White
Business—Drab
Continuing Studies—Silver Gray
Education—Light Blue
Graduate—Royal Blue
Health, Physical Education, and Recreation—Sage Green
Informatics—Copper
Journalism—Cardinal
Labor Studies—Nile Green
Law—Royal Purple
Library and Information Science—Lemon Yellow
Medicine—Kelly Green
Music—Pink
Nursing—Apricot
Optometry—Aqua
Public and Environmental Affairs—Peacock Blue
Social Work—Citron

GOWNS

The bachelor's and associate's gowns have a closed front and open sleeves. The master's gown has extremely long, closed sleeves, from which the arms extend through a slit at the wrist; the end of the sleeve is square, with an arc cut away just above the bottom. The doctor's gown has velvet panels down the front, and voluminous bell-shaped sleeves on which there are three velvet bars.

HOODS

The bachelor's hood is worn only by those who already hold bachelor's degrees. It is rather short, with a narrow velvet edging of the appropriate color (see list of tassels) and a lining in the color or colors of the institution—crimson at Indiana.

The master's hood is considerably longer, has a wider velvet edging, and exposes more of the lining.

The doctor's hood is easily recognized by the width of the velvet edging, the wide panels at either side, the greater length, and the full exposure of the lining. The colors of the edging most frequently seen are royal blue for philosophy, green for medicine, royal purple for laws, light blue for education, and aqua for optometry; the colors for the honorary doctoral degrees are royal purple for Doctor of Laws, white for Doctor of Humane Letters, golden yellow for Doctor of Science, and pink for Doctor of Music.

HONORS

GRADUATING WITH DISTINCTION

Indiana University holds all of its graduates in high esteem and takes an added measure of pride in those who have excelled academically. Candidates who are graduating with distinction, high distinction, and highest distinction are entitled to wear on their left shoulders the fourragère, cream and crimson cords. In addition, on some campuses, qualified students are entitled to wear gold medallions indicating that they are graduating with honors.

The recorders in each school distribute fourragères to qualified students before Commencement. The requirements for graduating with honors are different for each school.

HONORS CORDS

Graduates who are members of nearly 60 nationally recognized honor societies may wear their societies' honors cords or medallions during Commencement.

The white tab under the cap button on certain law candidates indicates their selection by the Order of the Coif, a scholastic honor society. Law candidates who have tentatively received honors also wear the fourragère.

The gold medallion on a cream and crimson cord indicates the candidates graduating from the Honors College. Honors College candidates who have tentatively received honors also wear the fourragère.

The appropriate recognition is recorded on the individual's diploma as a permanent testimonial of achievement.

SYMBOLS

Traditional in all formal ceremonies of Indiana University are the Mace, symbol of authority; the Jewel of the Office, emblematic of the Office of the President; and the Collar of the Jewel of Office. The first is carried in academic procession by the grand marshal, and the last two are worn by the president. In design and ornamentation they represent significant events in the history of the state of Indiana and of the university.

The treasured symbols were presented to the university by its chapters of the Miami Triad in celebrating their centennials. The Jewel of Office was presented by Beta Theta Pi in 1945; the Mace was given by Phi Delta Theta in 1949; and the Collar of the Jewel of Office by Sigma Chi in 1958.

THE HISTORY OF ACADEMIC ATTIRE

Academic costume of today has a history of nearly eight centuries. In medieval Europe, all townspeople—men and women—wore long flowing robes and gowns. The materials and colors varied according to the wealth and rank of the individual and were governed by royal decree. Gradually, there developed distinctive gowns for the various professions, trades, and guilds.

Students in the medieval universities of Paris, Bologna, Oxford, and Cambridge organized themselves into guilds. Their usual garb, a long gown, was necessary for warmth in the unheated buildings. Scholars, generally members of church orders, wore these robes and also hoods to protect their shaved heads. Later, skullcaps were worn on the head, and the hood became a cape that could be pulled over the head in unpleasant weather. As additional universities were founded, distinctive forms of the gown and hood were adapted by their faculties for bachelors (apprentices of arts), masters (teachers), and doctors (teachers who had completed postgraduate studies). The variations appeared mostly in the hood and were regulated by strict rules. Tailors who departed from the authorized design could be punished. When caps and hats came into fashion in the fifteenth century, the hoods became ornamental, draped over the shoulders and down the back.

The academic hat was adapted from the headdress of the ordinary people. It was first worn as a symbol of the master's degree and existed in various forms. Some caps were stiff, some soft, some square, some round with a tuft in the center. The tassel of today is an elaboration of the tuft. The mortarboard style comes to us from Oxford University.

When academic costume came to America in 1754, styles were quite varied. In Europe they still are; however, in our country, usage has been standardized by the Intercollegiate Code of Academic Costume.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Will Shortz

He is the editor of the New York Times crossword puzzle, the “puzzle master” on NPR’s Weekend Edition Sunday, and co-founder of the World Puzzle Federation. Esquire magazine named him to their list of “The 100 Best People in the World,” noting that he’s one of those people who make the world “a much better place simply because they’re in it.”

Will Shortz’s ascent to puzzle greatness began in Crawfordsville, Indiana, where he was born and raised on an Arabian horse farm. He sold his first puzzle at 14 (to the youth magazine Venture) and became a regular contributor to Dell puzzle publications at just 16.

When Shortz entered Indiana University as a freshman, he created his own degree in enigmatology (the study of riddles) through IU’s individualized major program. The major drew upon a range of disciplines including English, math, philosophy, journalism, and linguistics; his thesis focused on the history of American word puzzles before 1860.

Shortz received his one-of-a-kind degree in 1974 and remains the only person in the world with academic credentials in creating puzzles. “Every school should have a course in enigmatology,” he told Wired magazine in a 2003 interview.

IU President Michael McRobbie says Shortz’s success was grounded in the quality of his Indiana University education. “He set out to fulfill his lifelong dream to be a puzzle master through IU’s Individualized Major Program. His degree led to career success on the pages of the New York Times and considerable personal success in encouraging others to challenge themselves,” says McRobbie.

After college, Shortz earned a Juris Doctorate from the University of Virginia, planning to make money as a lawyer, retire early, and then make puzzles for the rest of his life. He ditched the lawyer part of the plan and accepted a position as editor of Games magazine instead of taking the bar exam.

Shortz became puzzle editor for the New York Times in 1993 and set to work making puzzles that better reflected real life and language. He reshaped the puzzles, dropping archaic terms and incorporating the use of product words, slang, and pop culture references.

Since he reinvented the Times puzzle, which reaches an estimated 50 million people per week, Shortz has built a following that includes former President Bill Clinton, the Indigo Girls, Ken Burns, Mike Mussina, and Jon Stewart, all of whom were featured in Wordplay, the 2006 documentary that focuses on Shortz and the American Crossword Puzzle Tournament he founded. The tournament held its 30th competition last year. (He also founded the World Puzzle Championship.)

One of Shortz’s favorite crosswords—and one that garnered the most response—was the “Election Day” puzzle of 1996 (designed by puzzle constructor Jeremiah Farrell). Because of clues that could be two different words (for example, “Black Halloween Animal” could have been either “bat” or “cat”) the puzzle had two correct solutions for “lead story tomorrow”: “Bob Dole elected” and “Clinton elected.”

In 2006, Shortz expanded his puzzle expertise to the humble Sudoku, which he produces for a popular St. Martin’s series. He thinks puzzles of any kind are a natural way for people to “put things in order” in at least one part of their lives.

“Of the natural problems we have every day, very few have concrete solutions,” he told the New York Times in an interview. “We just jump in the middle and muddle through. But with a puzzle, you have that feeling of completion, which is very satisfying.”

THREE BRAINTEASERS

by Will Shortz

1. First a simple one.
Delete six consecutive letters from “Indiana University” to get a two-word phrase that describes an important way in which the IU student body excels.
2. Rearrange the letters of SLAM BASH YELL to name a place at IU where these three things occur.
3. The name of what classic movie is a rearrangement of the letters in A WAG BIKE YARN ?

Honorary Degree Candidate

Ellen Johnson Sirleaf

Doctor of Laws

As president of Liberia, Ellen Johnson Sirleaf serves an important role in the reconstruction and reform of Liberia. To heal a country torn by civil war, Sirleaf merges her intellect, political savvy, and experience. She is Africa's first elected female head of state.

"With steely intensity, she has been called the "Iron Lady," says Patrick O'Meara, Indiana University vice president for international affairs. "She confronts former warlords, but at the same time, she is a maternal figure to those who suffered during the long civil war."

Sirleaf's work to improve Liberia began long before she became president in 2006. After years of fighting for freedom, justice, and equality in Liberia, spending time in jail, and being forced into exile, President Sirleaf is now entrusted with the most challenging task any Liberian leader has faced—rebuilding a post-conflict nation. She is a lifetime crusader for human rights and for the equality of African women; one of her most notable achievements is starting the International Institute for Women in Political Leadership. "Her energy and warmth are prodigious, and she has attracted the broad support of the country's people," says Lauren Robel, Dean and Val Nolan Professor of Law at the IU School of Law—Bloomington.

Her election as president of Liberia in 2006 is an example of the progress Liberia has made in both human and women's rights. "It's a miraculous time in Liberia, and Ellen is a part of that," says David Williams, the John Hastings Professor of Law at IU Bloomington. From 1980 until the early 2000s, Liberia had continuous civil strife, and to Williams, it seemed as if Liberia would never have democracy again. But in 2006, Liberia organized an open and fair election. "Nobody could have predicted that," Williams said. "People stood in the sun for hours—and the sun in Liberia is hotter than anywhere I have ever been—so they could vote."

Sirleaf's leadership has attracted international recognition. In 2006, Forbes magazine recognized her as one of the most powerful women in the world, and Time magazine included her in its list of 100 people who shape the world. She was named Distinguished Fellow at the Calus M. Halle Institute for Global Learning at Emory University and awarded an honorary doctorate from Marquette University. Recently she received the international Republican Freedom Award presented by Senator John McCain and participated in former President Bill Clinton's Global Initiative Conference.

Sirleaf reached out to the international community—especially to the United States—for assistance in rebuilding Liberia. The newly elected president addressed the U.S. Congress in 2006, asking for the United States' support to help her country "become a brilliant beacon, an example to Africa and the world of what love of liberty can achieve."

Indiana University is one of the largest repositories of Liberian research materials in the United States. Because of the generosity of scholars who specialize in Liberian studies—especially anthropologist Svend Holsoe—the IU

Bloomington campus houses a rich collection of materials on Liberian history, arts, ethnography, and culture. "IU is playing a small but significant part in her country and in the preservation of its history," says O'Meara.

And this connection runs deep. "In her promotion of higher education and capacity building for national development in Liberia, President Sirleaf has encouraged the development of close cooperation between Liberian education and developmental institutions and Indiana University," says Amos Sawyer, former interim president of Liberia and co-director of the IU Workshop in Political Theory and Policy Analysis.

Sirleaf's academic credentials are as impressive as her political career. She holds degrees from Madison Business College, the University of Colorado, and Harvard University. Her academic background in accounting and economics led her to a distinguished career in finance and politics. She served as Liberia's Minister of Finance; later, she became chair of the Commission on Good Governance in Liberia. "She is an extraordinary individual who exemplifies the long connection between Liberia and IU as well as the linkage of Africa with the African American diaspora," says Ruth M. Stone, Laura Boulton Professor, Department of Folklore and Ethnomusicology.

Sirleaf is devoted to advancing human rights. Through her leadership, she's converting national devastation into opportunity for growth. "The situation in Liberia is a bright spot of hope in western Africa, and the president is largely responsible for that hope," says Robel.
