New Faces at IUPUI University Library for Fall Semester 2004

Karen Zimmerman has accepted a Visiting Librarian appointment with IUPUI University Library while Martha McCormick is on a leave of absence. Karen is the Director of Information Resources at the Center for Teaching and Learning within the Office of Professional Development. She recently came from the University of Iowa Libraries where she developed and coordinated TWIST (Teaching with Innovative Style and Technology), a collaborative librarian-faculty project to develop online learning environments. She is also currently the IUPUI librarian liaison for English and Creative Writing with the School of Liberal Arts. Karen has also been librarian for Mathematics and Physics at the University of Iowa and held various library positions at the University of South Dakota and the University of Kansas. She has a B.A. in English and an M.A. in Library Science from the University of Iowa, and an M.A. in History from the University of South Dakota.

Lynette Georgeson is working for IUPUI University Library as a part-time Librarian this fall while Sally Neal is on maternity leave. Lynette was born and raised in Southern California but moved to Indiana when her husband started his general surgery residency at IU. Lynette received her MLS from IU while working as a reference assistant at University Library. She was hired by Ball Memorial Hospital to plan and open a consumer health library in the new Cancer Center. She later served as the librarian for the School of Health Sciences at the Mayo Clinic. She is now back in Indiana as her husband has taken a job on staff at IU after finishing his fellowship in Rochester, Minnesota. Lynette is beginning to see a pattern here but is excited to be back working at University Library again.
