STAFF NEWS

Effective July 1, 2001 Gary Wiggins will begin a second, 2-year term as the Coordinator for the Science Libraries. Lou Malcomb will continue as the RCSD Coordinator through November 2001 at which time her split sabbatical begins. Patricia Steele's appointment as Coordinator for Academic Information Services is ongoing. Steven Sowell's appointment as Coordinator of the Humanities & Social Science Libraries continues through September 2002.

Harriette and I would like to thank the Coordinators for their leadership and continuing support of the Libraries' mission. Their participation and input to LMT is greatly appreciated as is their advice to us in our capacities as Associate Deans.

LIBRARY EVENTS

Garden Social at Wylie*

Join us at Wylie House on Saturday, July 7 between 10am and 2pm.

Second Street is closed, but Wylie House Museum is still open and we're having a Garden Social on Saturday, July 7 between the hours of 10am and 2pm. We will have period plants for sale as well as bouquets. Costumed interpreters will provide free tours of the Museum on the hour, and the garden will be open for your pleasure. Bring the family and enjoy a bit of old time entertainment.

Summer Exhibition at the Lilly Library*

Miniature books, most of which are less than three inches tall and some of which are smaller than a penny, have delighted readers for centuries. Popular because they were easily carried or concealed, these historic books range from tiny "Thumb Bibles" to illustrated nursery rhymes. The earliest piece of block printing to which an accurate date can be ascribed--a Japanese wooden block print from about 770 AD--is a miniature scroll and part of the Lilly Library's collections. More than 900 of the library's 16,000 miniatures will be on display.

Four Thousand Years of Miniature Books
June 18 through September 15
Lilly Library Main Gallery

A public opening for the exhibition will be held on Thursday, June 21, from 5:30 until 7:30 p.m. at the Lilly Library. The opening is free and open to the public.
