A Historic One-Man March

Thirty years ago, student Todd Deloney embarked on a one-man march to protest the opening of campus on Martin Luther King Jr. Day, which became a federal holiday four years prior. As we close out a month of events, webinars, conversations, art exhibits, theatrical productions, and more in celebration of Black History, we take a closer look at Deloney's journey. Join him and Chancellor Iwama as they walk his historic route and reflect on the legacy of his activism.
