Available now: Fall 2015 Issue of InULA Notes

The newest issue of InULA Notes is now available via IUScholarWorks Journals. In it, InULA President Christina Wray talks about the financial success of the book sale committee and other InULA initiatives. She also contributed a wonderful piece on InULA's autumn hike through beautiful Beanblossom Bottoms.

Ashley Ahlbrand and Rivkah Cooke provide lively recaps of two recent professional events: the Ohio Regional Association of Law Libraries (ORALL) annual meeting and the Charleston Conference. Cindy Dabney, immediate past chair of Indiana Networking for Documents and Information of Government Organizations (INDIGO), announces the organization's creation of the Jacqueline Fessard Johnson Distinguished Service Award.

Also in this issue, be sure to read Latrice Booker's compelling argument for why one-shot research instruction is ineffective for teaching information literacy and Anne Haines' excellent advice for creating and curating website content. Lastly, learn more about 9 new InULA members in the Meet the New(ish) Librarians column and don't miss the InULA Research Incentive Fund reports from Kristina Keogh, Chuck Peters, and Christina Sheley.

InULA Notes Vol. 27, No. 2 is available at the home of InULA Notes: <http://scholarworks.iu.edu/journals/index.php/inula/>.

Happy reading!

In February, Nels Gunderson, Reference Librarian in the Herman B Wells Library, will retire. Nels has worked tirelessly at the Indiana University Libraries since beginning his career as Reference Librarian for Regional Campus Libraries. From 1982 to 2010, Nels was the Reference Librarian and Associate Head of the Business/SPEA Library Information Commons.

Nels made significant contributions to business reference literature, publishing several bibliographies, including the 1990 Pension Funds: An Annotated Bibliography. He was also a regular contributor to Abstracts of Public Administration, Development and Environment.

Nels became a Reference Services Librarian in the Wells Library in 2010, in a department that welcomed his collegial demeanor and business knowledge. He remained an important resource for the Business/SPEA Information Commons and its users, graciously offering his time and expertise, helping with the large class demand as well as amiably helping staff the library service points during librarian leaves and vacations.

Some in the Reference Department, and its alumni, will recall field trips to the Business/SPEA Library. Nels explained business sources and gently suggested we could ask him if we had trouble finding, say, a company's market share compared with its competitors or a bond prospectus or the value of T-Notes. When it came to Bloomberg, though, we simply left it all to him ("Let's transfer this call to Business," becoming our mantra).

Even before retirement approached, Nels warmed his winter with thoughts of balmy weather, away from the cold and the ice and the snow, away from flu and bronchitis. It took little encouragement -- although he got that -- to imagine lying on a pearly-sanded beach, a soft breeze swaying the fronds of the coconut palms, and the limpid waves of the ocean lapping at the shore. We wish Nels a long and relaxing retirement doing just that.

department in 1989, and the Acting Head of Undergraduate Library Services in 1997. Between 1996 and 2012, she was the Assistant Head, Associate Head, Interim Head of the Undergraduate Library Services department, and Head of the IU Libraries Reference Services department, 2009-2012.

Throughout her career, Emily has eagerly supported new and early career librarians, seeking out ways to meet institutional needs while providing new librarians with opportunities to explore new and evolving career paths. An early advocate of computer technology in librarianship, Emily co-founded, in 1998, the Undergraduate Library Services Resident Program at Indiana University.

Emily was an early champion of information literacy, which is now one of the core elements of the Libraries' strategic plan. She has been an active teacher at many levels throughout her including her role as Adjunct Assistant Professor in SLIS in and SLIS Coordinator for Reference and Public Services courses.

Emily was extensively involved in service activities throughout her career on the local, state, and national levels. She worked with the Indiana University Librarians Association since joining the IU Libraries, holding elected positions of treasurer and executive board member at large. Emily was involved in the American Library Association for over twenty years, naturally gravitating to the Library Instruction Roundtable. Active on many committees within LIRT, Emily was elected president for the 1993-94 term. Please join me in congratulating Emily on her well-deserved retirement.

John Pate Retires

John Pate retired on December 30, 2015 after many long years of dedicated and loyal service. Only after his departure, in his absence, will we truly comprehend the depth and breadth of his service. He will be sorely missed by a multitude of his colleagues and customers. We who loved, valued, and respected him will miss him sorely, and wish him a long and happy retirement...with more than a hint of jealousy.
